BLUEBEARD'S KEYS, and other Stories. By Miss THACKERAY. Large crown 8vo, 10s. 6d.

But with how much besides, does Miss Thackeray's free and flowing pages enrich the old story."—Times, December 5.

"Delicately and delicately told little stories."—Athenæum. "For those who would value a Christmas gift not by the money that was given for it, but by the pleasure that it gives, we could scarcely wish a more charming present than this book of Miss Thackeray's."—Saturday Review.

NEW NOVELS at ALL THE LIBRARIES.

A STORY of THREE SISTERS. By CECIL MAXWELL. 2 vols. [This day.]

WYNCOTE. By Mrs. THOMAS ERSKINE, Author of "Marjory." 3 vols. [Just published.]

"An excellent story, and another proof, if any were needed, that it is possible to form a very interesting plot out of the events of every-day life."—Times.

"This is a pretty novel, and one likely to prove attractive..... We recommend it as a pleasant readable book."—John Bull.

"A charming novel, the plot being intelligent and cleverly worked out—an excellent story."—Court Journal.

FAR FROM the MADDING CROWD. By THOMAS HARDY, Author of "A Pair of Blue Eyes," "Under the Greenwood Tree." 2 vols., with 12 Illustrations, 21s.

"Mr. Hardy is, perhaps, the most vigorous of all the novelists who have appeared during the last few years. His powers of description, his skill in devising 'situations,' his quaint humour, secure him a high place among novelists of any age."—Athenæum.

"This last work of Mr. Hardy at once lifts his name above the crowd, and gives him a position among the eminent few..... The drama in Mr. Hardy's novels is in no sense a warfare of opinion or ideas; it is a warfare of persons moved by the primeval motives of love and jealousy. It is in following the dark ways of tragic passion that Mr. Hardy's power makes itself unquestionably felt. 'Far from the Madding Crowd' is no ordinary novel."—Examiner.

"Another pastoral from the pen of Mr. Hardy would have been welcome if it only equalled his former productions in merit, but this is, in many respects, superior to either of his most successful works. When the most exquisite freshness of thought and manner are the chief characteristics of a writer, the critic looks anxiously upon his later efforts, fearing lest the dew should have dried upon the flower, the bloom been brushed from the fruit. Nothing of the kind has happened in the present case; rather is there advance on every point."—Echo.

SIR SAMUEL W. BAKER'S
ISMAILIA:

A NARRATIVE of the EXPEDITION to CENTRAL AFRICA for the SUPPRESSION of the SLAVE TRADE.

ORGANISED by ISMAIL, KHEDIVE of EGYPT.

TIMES.—"A book which will be read with very great interest, and if the feelings excited by the record are not always those of unmixed approval, we cannot hesitate to give the fullest praise to the energy, determination, and resource evinced by the leader of the expedition. There are most interesting sketches of social life, manners, and customs scattered through these pages; and though the author tells us that he sought to confine his narrative to the object of the expedition, there are numerous anecdotes of sporting adventures which would make a most pleasant little volume by themselves."

STANDARD.—"It is certain that Sir Samuel's narrative of his wanderings contains much valuable information, not only of a geographical nature, but also with regard to the character of the Africans."

GLOBE.—"The author never wrote more vividly, or enabled his readers to realise more exactly, the scenes and incidents he describes. He is one of the very few travellers who can pass through thrilling adventures, and afterwards give appropriate form to the materials they have amassed. We follow him step by step in his journeyings, and never once find him tedious. Only by reading the book itself can any one obtain an adequate idea of the extraordinary adventures detailed."

MORNING POST.—"The account of his efforts, of difficulties and dangers undergone and surmounted, reads more like a romance than like the actual experiences of, comparatively speaking, a mere handful of men. Sir Samuel Baker was evidently the right man in the right place. The style of the narrative is quite characteristic of the practical nature of the man; it is straight to the point, and free from useless reiteration. The descriptions are never diffuse, yet bright and comprehensive, the whole work being incomparably more entertaining than books of African travel usually are. The narrative abounds in descriptive sketches and anecdotes well and pleasantly told. The book is profusely illustrated, and the clear and admirable maps prefixed to each volume render it an easy task for the reader to follow the track of the expedition."

PALL MALL GAZETTE.—"We cannot praise it higher than by saying it is quite unlike most books of African travel. In other words, it is well written, and full of remarkable adventures. The account of the retreat is masterly, and the battles are described with considerable spirit."

ATHENÆUM.—"This book will add to Sir Samuel Baker's fame. Once more he comes before his fellow-countrymen as an explorer, a man of keen intelligence, a sportsman, and one who can do and dare, suffer and wait, and under every circumstance prove himself to be a thorough Englishman. As such a man, we have hitherto been proud of him, and have gloried in his geographical discoveries. But in the present work, especially in the latter portion of it, the heart of the reader is touched as the author, in his previous works, never touched it before."

MR. BLACK'S NEW BOOK.

THE MAID of KILLEENA; and other Stories. By WILLIAM BLACK, Author of "A Princess of Thule." Crown 8vo, 10s. 6d. [This day.]

"It was with something akin to this joy that we drew our chair close to the fire as the weary work of the novel-critic gave place to the smile of satisfaction and pleasure, when, in the very first page of our book, we discovered that we had come again to those Western Isles in the quiet summer sea in the far North, and to those simple people amidst whose loving allegiance the Princess of Thule-Shelia, held her modest court. We shall not be satisfied till 'The Maid of Killeena' rests upon our shelves."—Spectator.
